RUSSIANS JOIN BRITISH FORCE

Cavalry Makes Its Appearance in Mesopotamia.

DETAILS OF TRIP UNKNOWN

Fighting for Possession of Important Strategic Positions on the Verdun Front in France Still Continues With Unabated Severity.

London, May 22.—A force of Russian cavalry suddenly has joined the British army on the Tigris, in Mesopotamia.

Appearance of the Russian troops with the British in Mesopotamia leads to the belief here that the Bagdad railway has been cut at Mosul.

How they made their way to the English army is not known and the details of their trip through a country infested with enemies remains a mystery.

Word of the appearance of the Russians came in the following official communication:

"A force of Russian cavalry has joined General Goringe after a bold and adventurous ride.

"General Sir Percy Lake, in charge of the operations on the Tigris, reports that May 19 the enemy vacated the Deffatessa advanced position on the right bank of the Tigris. General Goringe, following up the enemy, attacked and carried the Dujailan redoubt.

"The enemy is still holding the Sannayatt position on the left bank of the river."

This word from General Lake is the first news of operations on the Tigris since the fall of Kut-el-Amara.

Its unfavorable news that the Turks are still holding their positions on the left bank of the Tigris, where the check to the British made it impossible to carry out the relief of General Townshend, is tempered with the welcome, but astonishing information that a body of Russian cavalry in an adventurous and mysterious ride has succeeded in joining General Goringe's forces on the south bank of the river.

How this important junction was effected is still unknown and the story will be awaited with intense interest.

The supposition is that this detachment came from the Russian army, which is threatening Kermuk, but it still remains a puzzle where and how the Russians succeeded in crossing the river.

Official statements from Petrograd made no mention of the juncture of the Russian cavalry and the English army reported in London.

The war office communication says: "In the Caucasus our troops continue their advance in the direction of Mosul."

VERDUN BATTLE CONTINUES

German Take First Line Trench on Dead Man's Hill.

Paris, May 22.—The battle for the possession of important strategic positions on the Verdun front west of the Meuse river continues with unabated severity.

The French war office announced that the Germans, although repulsed in most of their attempts, succeeded in capturing a first line trench on Dead Man's hill and gaining ground on the slopes west of the hill.

HOME RULE HURT, DILLON CABLES.

London, May 22.—John Dillon, member of the house of commons for East Mayo, who recently bitterly denounced the government methods of dealing with the Irish revolt, has sent the following message to Judge John P. McGoorty of the Irish Fellowship club, Chicago: "The Irish insurrection has inflicted serious injury to the Irish cause. All hope of securing home rule in the near future depends more than ever on the union of the Irish race throughout the world."

PENSION BUDGET IS LESS

Total This Year Is $2,500,000 Under Estimates.

Washington, May 22.—Pensions will cost the American people $5,000,000 less this year than last, under the annual pension bill, as reported by the appropriations committee.

The total is $158,965,000, two and one-half millions less than the estimates submitted.

ALLIES NOT READY TO DISCUSS PEACE

Washington, May 22.—"The die is cast. Germany must fight on to the bitter end and cannot escape retribution by useless appeals to neutrals for peace."

This is the answer of the entente allies to the steadily increasing peace talk which has reached official circles here from Berlin.

Both the president and Secretary of State Lansing have been informed confidentially from the sources close to the entente capitals that peace proposals now are out of the question. The time is not ripe, it is explained, and the time will not be ripe "until Germany's military dominance has been completely broken."

Realizing that this position assumed by the allies might tend unfavorably to influence public opinion in neutral countries the chancelleries in London, Paris and Petrograd have discouraged all talk of peace proposals.

LEADERS DISCUSS CAMPAIGN

Italy Taking Steps to Cope With Any Situation.

Rome, May 22.—After a protracted council meeting, attended by cabinet ministers, General Paolo Morrone, minister of war, issued a statement concerning the military situation in connection with the Austrian offensive which it was said would "leave the Italian supreme command perfectly tranquil."

The plans of the Italian military authorities cannot be divulged, or discussed, but it can be stated that measures have been adopted to cope with any possible situation.

In addition to direct action on the Italian front it is expected that a general offensive movement against the Austrians will be made on other fronts, especially in the Balkans and in Russia, and, in addition, a contemporaneous attack is expected to be sprung by Italy's allies in France.

FRANCE AIDS POOR TENANT

New Law Regulates Settlement of Unpaid Rents.

Paris, May 22.—The law voted by parliament to regulate the settlement of unpaid rents accrued since the war began and to accrue pending the termination of hostilities, estimated at 15,000,000,000 francs, exonerates arbitrarily from all obligation modest tenants, paying from the equivalent of $12 up to $150 per year, according to the importance of the town in which they reside.

The landlord may, however, in such cases force payment if he can prove that the tenant is able to pay, the burden of proof being upon the landlord.

RUSHING TO TURKEY'S AID

Germany and Austria Sending Men to Mesopotamia.

London, May 22.—"Four thousand German troops are expected at Bagdad, in June," says the Times' Baghdad correspondent. Twelve thousand Austrians already are there.

The Turks are weakening the defense of Constantinople, sending all possible reinforcements to Asia Minor, and concentrating a large force at Marash, three days' march northeast of Alexandretta (on the Mediterranean in Northern Syria) where they fear an attempted landing by entente allies.

Nearly 10,000 persons marched in the parade, which was the first of its kind west of New York.
The parade moved through the downtown business and nearby residence sections which were brilliant with red, white and blue lights, bunting and flags.
Both sides of the line of march were crowded to capacity with cheering citizens.

OKLAHOMA TOWN HIT BY TORNADO

Nine Persons Killed and Thirty-eight Injured.

ONLY THREE DWELLINGS LEFT

Twelve Business Houses, a Hotel and Sixty Residences Demolished at Kemp City, Okla.—Storm Cuts a Swath Three-quarters of a Mile Wide and Five Miles Long.

Denison, Tex., May 22.—Only three small dwellings remain standing at Kemp City, Okla., following a tornado that swept this section Saturday night, killing nine persons and injuring thirty-eight others.

The storm devastated a path three-quarters of a mile wide and five miles long. It was at Kemp City the storm spent its greatest fury.

Twelve business houses, a two-story hotel and sixty residences were demolished there.

This was the second time in recent years the little town of 300 inhabitants has been visited by a tornado. Merchants said that the town probably would not be rebuilt.

Eight were killed in the two while the other victim, a child, was killed in the collapse of its father's home just across the Red river in Texas.

Of the thirty-eight persons injured thirty-six are residents of Kemp City.

Two daughters of Dr. J. J. McCullough were hurt at the time their younger sister was killed in the McCullough home, five miles east of Denison. Most of those injured were caught in the collapse of buildings while trying to reach storm cellars shortly after the storm broke at 8.23 p. m. Saturday.

The bodies of the dead in several instances were found hundreds of yards from where their houses had stood.

The two-year-old child of Dr. and Mrs. Brinson, who were killed, was hurled 500 feet with flying debris when the residence was destroyed, but the child suffered only minor injuries.

After the storm passed emergency treatment was given the injured in complete darkness and with the rain falling in torrents. A special train carrying twelve physicians from Denison did not reach Kemp until several hours after the tornado passed.

WILSON REFERS TO CONFLICT IN EUROPE

Charlotte, N. C., May 22.—America has had to serve as a melting pot for the diversified and contrasting elements of various nationalities, President Wilson told an audience of 10,000 here at the celebration of the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of the signing of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence.

Europe is another melting pot, a hot, seething melting pot, the president said, and the enemies in Europe are only fighting another phase of the battle that is going on—peacefully—in America.

"America has always been making and to be made," Mr. Wilson said, "and while we were in the midst of this process, apparently at the acme and crisis of this process, while this travail of soul and fermentation of elements was at its height, came this great cataclysm of European war."

"Almost every other nation in the world became involved in a tremendous struggle which was what, my fellow citizens? What are the elements in the struggle? Don't you see that in this European war is involved the very thing that has been going on in America? It is a competition of national standards, of national traditions and of national political systems."

THE STORE OF QUALITY

AVOID LIGHTNING

State Fire Marshal Tells how It Can be Done and Where Lightning Falls to Strike

State Fire Marshal Margadine gives out the following piece of information that will be interesting to those who endeavor to dodge during a thunder storm:

It is noticeable that the business part of a city, tall sky-scrapers, steel frame buildings and steel wind-mill towers are ignored by lightning, he says.

This is due to the fact that each of these objects is its own lightning rod. There fore a safe place during a storm is in such structures.

There also is a list of places and things that lightning likes to hit, including country houses, barns,
churches, school houses, trees, haystacks and animals, especially if the animals are near a wire fence.

This data is assembled from observations made during nineteen years by the United States government. From this it is learned that the safest place during an electrical storm at night is in bed, especially if the bedstead is of metal; but one mustn't stand upright near the bed
if he wishes to insure escape.

During the day the safest place in the house is in the center of a room where there is no stove, and contrary to general opinion it makes little or no difference whether windows or doors are opened or closed.
Lightning can get in under any circumstances if it wants to.

The safest way of all is to have the house in which one lives properly rodged so as to conduct the electrical spark into the ground.

Infantile Paralysis Is Spread by the Stable Flies

FARM AND FIRESIDE declares that stable flies, which differ somewhat from houseflies, are exceedingly dangerous. Following is an extract from an article which contains many interesting and important facts about stable flies.

Most insects are destructive in their earlier stages, but these flies do most damage when full grown. They bite through the skin and suck the blood of warm blooded animals, including man. After piercing the skin the fly gorges itself with blood, commonly staying in position, until full fed for the time, unless brushed off. In such a case it flies to another animal. In this way the fly may carry disease germs quickly from the blood of one creature to the blood of another.

After a full meal the fly usually rests
a few hours on a leaf or board, digesting it, before it is ready for another attack. It seems to take two meals a day when it can get them, and it is generally successful.

It has been believed for years that this fly is an active agent in spreading the germs of anthrax and glanders.
Lately it has been convicted of being the carrier of the dreaded infantile paralysis, which has long baffled the doctors by the mystery of its appearance and the sudden deadliness with which it comes.

FLIES are carriers of disease seed.
Live and breed in all kinds of filth.
Infect food and drink by germ laden feet.
Each female fly can lay 150 eggs.
Should be kept out of dwellings.

Says They Are Planning to Steal
Roosevelt Thunder.

Chicago, May 20.—Republican chief tains are asserting that they will steal Roosevelt's thunder in the coming campaign Secretary O. K. Davis of the Progressive party declared in a statement.

"Certain Republican leaders have boasted that they intend to let Roosevelt 'write the party platform,'" said Davis.

"I take it that these gentlemen mean by this that they are going to have the platform written out of the recent declarations by the colonel concerning Americanism and preparedness and to commit their party to this program.

"At the same time they seek to have their convention nominate some other man than the one whose aggressiveness and force have made these things the paramount issue of the day."

Kitty Gordon, in "As in a Looking Glass" Wears Gorgeous Hats and Gowns at Best Tonight

CREATIONS OF MODISTE'S ART

Kitty Gordon has Had a Remarkable Career, Famous English Beauty a Screen Favorite

The "Best" theatre should be packed to the door tonight because Kitty Gordon appears in "As in a Looking Glass." Of interest to the ladies is the fact that she wears marvelous gowns and hats, the most wonderful and beautiful creations of modiste and milliner. And the plot of the play is an all-absorbing one.

Kitty Gordon, known as the "English Lillian Russell," made her film debut with the World Film Corporation in a screen version of F. C. Phillips' novel, "As in a Looking Glass." Heretofore, Miss Gordon's statuesque beauty and inimitable grace have been admired alone across the footlights.

Miss Gordon first flashed her beauty above the American horizon 12 years ago, when she appeared in a musical play in New York, "Veronique." The piece was not much of a success nor did it afford the beautiful Miss Gordon a chance to make an important hit.

She returned to the London stage, where she was already well known as a music hall singer and light operatic prima donna. Six years ago she came again to these shores to play the leading role with Sam Bernard in the musical farce "He Came From Milwaukee." This time her hit was instantaneous. Critics and the public alike began to rave over this British beauty's marvelous figure, face and vocal talent.

An engagement as the leading attraction in the Winter Garden's first show, "La Belle Paris," followed. After this Miss Gordon was starred throughout the country in the Victor Herbert light opera, "The Enchantress." Then followed a triumphant engagement in vaudeville and the starring tour in "The Pretty Mrs. Smith." After this Miss Gordon formed a vaudeville partnership with Jack Wilson, the comedian, and the team has been one of the biggest headline features for the past two seasons. While working on her picture, Miss Gordon continues as the stellar attraction at the Winter Garden.

The appellation, "English Lillian Russell" is given Miss Gordon because of the fact that her beauty is typical of her native land and also because, like the fair Lillian's, time cannot wither nor custom stale its infinite perfections. Some sixteen years ago Miss Gordon married the Hon. Capt. Beresford of the British army and nobility, and became known in England as Lady Beresford. Her daughter, Cynthia Beresford, is now fifteen years old, as beautiful as her mother and apparently as talented.

Giese-Siegel

Jacob P. Siegel, formerly of Brainerd but now of Livingston, Mont., was married Saturday morning in Staples to Miss Dorothy Giese, Rev. Father Zitur officiating. Miss Frances Siegel, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Mr. Senti of Brainerd was best man.

The bride was dressed in a blue tailor made suit with hat to match. The bridesmaid was dressed in blue. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James Boyle.

The rooms were decorated in red and green. The young people received many beautiful presents. They will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Siegel of Fourth avenue northeast, for a few days and in St. Paul with friends before they leave for their future home in Livingston.

The bride was formerly a Jamestown girl, but has been in Staples the past year. Mr. Siegel is employed as a boilermaker in the shops in Livingston. The Brainerd friends and the Dispatch extend their congratulations and best wishes to the young people.

JEALOUSY PROMPTS SLAYING OF WOMAN

Grand Forks, N. D., May 22.—With her love grown cold and in a fit of jealous rage over attentions of another man Harry Smith, a resident of this city two years, shot and killed Mrs. May Cain at her home. In a signed statement made by him after the tragedy he declared his intention of killing himself, but a scuffle with Edith, the woman's oldest daughter, prevented him from doing so.

The shooting clears up a mystery which baffled the police a year ago, when a new born baby was found on the doorstep of a prominent citizen. Smith says he and Mrs. Cain are parents of the child.

He said that the woman had agreed to marry him until Harry O. White of Minneapolis began showing her attentions. Then, he asserted, she refused to have anything more to do with him.

POLITICIANS VERY ACTIVE

Favorite Son Groups May Combine Against Hughes.

Washington, May 22.—Everybody who is anybody in politics in Washington conceded that the election of Hughes delegates in Oregon over the representatives of Albert B. Cummins and Theodore E. Burton goes a long way toward assuring the nomination of Charles E. Hughes as the Republican presidential candidate.

At the same time there is a feeling among the leaders that there is grave danger to the Hughes movement in the recrudescence of the Roosevelt boom.

As the pre-convention contest enters its final stages the favorite son group of candidates and the supporters of Mr. Roosevelt find a common ground on which to wage battle.

They are banded together to "stop" Hughes, if possible. If this is accomplished it is the belief of the favorite sons that one of their number will land the prize.

HUGHES' MAJORITY 15,000 IN OREGON

Portland, Ore., May 22.—With 60 per cent of the vote cast in last Friday's primary election counted, and with all but four of the thirty-five counties heard from, it was found that of 100,000 Republican votes cast Charles E. Hughes received a majority of approximately 15,000 over the presidential candidates.

His plurality over Senator Albert B. Cummins will be approximately 25,000, while Senator Cummins received more than twice as many votes as former Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio.

The vote cast for Colonel Roosevelt for the Republican nomination was negligible, although he carried the Progressive party ballot as its presidential nominee.

Democrats appeared to have voted unanimously for President Wilson. Vice President Marshall won an easy victory over Governor Major of Missouri as the Democratic choice for vice president.

Mahnomen County

This county, organized in 1896, bears the Chippewa name for the wild rice which played so large a part in the economy on these Indians. The same name, but spelled Manonin, was applied to a very small county established in 1887 between Anoka and the town of St. Anthony. This county was abolished by constitutional amendment in 1860, and it is now the town of Fridley in Anoka county.

TREASURY AGENTS PREVENT FRAUDS

Washington, May 22.—Attempted frauds and evasions of the income tax law aggregating $8,389,185 have been frustrated by the treasury department, it was announced, during the first nine months of the current fiscal year.

The $8,389,185 which has been added to the incorrect returns assessed against delinquent corporations and individuals will be collected.

Whatever evasions and omissions may be uncovered in returns yet to be investigated will be similarly treated.

Agents of the internal revenue bureau, working under Commissioner Osborn, have for months investigated income tax returns and will continue their work until every one of the returns for the past fiscal year has been verified.

The investigation is said to have disclosed that corporations have been greater offenders than individuals.

Immions for State Roads.

A total of $54,839,000 was expended by the states for road building in 1915, according to a circular issued by the secretary of agriculture at Washington. In the list of states New York leads with $15,000,000. California was second with $7,000,000. Next came Pennsylvania with $5,000,000. Maryland stands fourth, $4,572,000. Other states that spent over $2,000,000 are Ohio, $3,300,000; Washington, $3,107,000; Massachusetts, $2,437,000; Illinois, $2,100,000.

Improved roads to the extent of 35,477 miles had been completed under state supervision at the outset of 1915. It was about twenty years ago that state governments began to make appropriations for road improvements; up to Jan. 1, 1915, the grand total set aside by the states for road improvements amounted to $211,859,000. Showing the way this policy of the states has grown in recent times, the circular states that $104,000,000 of the total was appropriated by the states since the beginning of 1914.

Dr. Waite's Trial Begins Today

(By United Press)

New York, May 22.—With the opening of the trial of young Dr. Arthur Warren Waite here today on the charge of poisoning his millionaire parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peck, of Grand Rapids, Mich., there begins to pour into the dry records of the New York supreme court one of the most sensational and astonishing stories of fortune-hunting, illicit love, murder, intrigue and deception that has ever been disclosed, as the alleged record of one man.

Waite's formal plea was "not guilty," but he may change it today. The state will attempt to prove that the slender, nattily attired, smiling youth who sits quietly before a long table in the dim and silent courtroom, deliberately wooed and married Clara Peck and having Mrs. Elizabeth Horton as his "studio companion" in a big New York hotel, actually did get Mr. and Mrs. Peck to New York on a visit and murder them by poisoning them with arsenic. That he got his wife to will her estate to him and was planning her murder as the third of the series in his alleged scheme to get the Peck millions. And that after murdering his mother-in-law and engineer the cremation of her body to prevent the discovery of the cause of her death, he bribed a New York undertaker with $9,000, ($7,800 of this amount was found where the undertaker told the police he hid it), to swear that arsenic was used in the fluid employed in the embalming of his father-in-law's body.

With his wife turned against him and prosecuting her suit for divorce, and Margaret Horton, his "Studio Companion" fresh from the triumphs of a vaudeville engagement won as a result of the publicity she gained from her association with him, Waite faces his fight against the electric chair without the support either of the woman he married or the woman he squandered his money on.

While he lay on a cot in Bellevue hospital, recovering from the effects of poison he had taken in an attempt to die after the poisoning of his father-in-law was discovered, Waite told several stories of how it had all happened. Chief among these was the fable of The Man from Egypt. This mysterious and sinister spirit, Waite is said to have assured District Attorney Swann, was with him night and day, goading him on to evil deeds. Nameless and intangible and possessed of the fiendish resourcefulness of ten thousand devils, The Man From Egypt never has been found. Nor is he expected to be. Another story Judge Swann reported as having been told him by Waite was that his father-in-law was tired of living and asked him to get the arsenic for him so he could die. It was only a few days after the death of Peck at the Waite apartments on Riverside drive that the first hint came to the authorities here and in Grand Rapids from "K. Adams" in New York to the authorities in Grand Rapids, advising an investigation before Mr. Peck's body was interred. It has since developed that when Waite saw this in the papers, he went to Margaret Horton at the school of languages where they first met and, according to Mrs. Horton, asked her to buy him certain "sleeping powders," which she says she did. Mrs. Horton, who at once began giving out columns and columns of interviews, insisted that the "studio" she shared with Waite in the hotel was used only as a studio, that Waite never was anything more than friendly with her and that they had to register under an assumed name, as man and wife, to get the suite. Harry Horton, husband of The Woman of Mystery, at first declared that Margaret was so utterly innocent of the ways of the world and so incapable of any wrong that he felt her association with Waite was to be entirely condoned. Horton said his wife was "an innocent dove among a flock of crows." Since then, however, Horton has been credited with the statement that he knew his wife was getting money from someone, but that he didn't know who and he didn't like to put a detective on her trail. Mrs. Dorothy van Palmenberg, a friend of the Hortons who sturdily supported Mrs. Horton's story at first, later quarreled with her and gave out a long interview in which she told how poor the Hortons were when she knew them a couple of years ago and how suddenly and luxuriously affluent they were when she met them after Mrs. Horton had met Waite.

Mrs. Van Palmenberg told of finding lingerie and a silk kimono and articles of male attire in a suitcase Mrs. Horton brought to her house from the "Studio Apartment" the night after the first hint of the Peck poisoners became public and Waite had locked himself in his Riverside Drive apartments.

When the police went to arrest Waite the following morning they found him in bed apparently dead, with the poison containers beside him. Waite was not dead, but he lay in a stupor for days, being transferred to Bellevue when he was recovered sufficiently to be moved.

Should Waite maintain his innocence in court today, the trial will proceed, so far as the defense is concerned, probably on the theory that Waite was temporarily insane when he committed the crimes charged against him.

The state will try to prove that he was at all times sane and that his alleged crimes were planned and carried to their conclusion in cold blood.

Should this situation arise it will develop a battle between alienists such as not been seen since the Harry Thaw trials.

The courtroom today was jammed to the doors with curious men and women and hundreds of others were turned away by the line of police guarding the entrances to the building. A venire of 250 men is drawn from which to start choosing a jury, but should the case actually go to trial it is expected that this number will be far from sufficient.

She Told Her Neighbor

When Jackson Dined

When Colonel David Crockett was a member of congress and was at his home in Tennessee some one asked him about the dinner hour in Washington. He said the common people ate dinner at 12, the next above them at 1, the merchants at 2, the representatives at 3, the senators at 4, members of the cabinet at 5 and the vice president at 6. "But when does the president dine?" "What! Old Hickory?" said Crockett, anxious to fix a time that would suit his idea of Jackson's greatness. "Well, he doesn't eat till next day!"

G. O. P. NEEDS ITS STRONGEST MAN

Leaders No Longer Say They Can Win With Anybody.

WILSON AS PEACE ADVOCATE

"He Has Kept Us Out of War," Is Cry Heard on All Sides—However, It May Happen That Our Troops Will Be Fighting by the Time November Elections Roll Around.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 22.—[Special.]—You can no longer hear wise Republicans assert that they can win with anybody. Those who know are alive to the fact that it will take the hardest kind of a fight to defeat Woodrow Wilson and that in order to win they must have a man who can get the votes of the Republicans and unite the party.

If there is a war in progress in Mexico and the possibility of a war with Germany—such possibilities may be probabilities any day—it will require a mighty good man and a close unification of former Republicans to carry the country.

"He Has Kept Us Out of War."

Republicans are hearing from constituents in all parts of the west the ever repeated phrase when describing Wilson's popularity. "He has kept us out of war."

Would it not be the irony of politics if the man who has become popular because he has kept the country out of war should be re-elected as a war president? And that may happen if there is fighting in Mexico next November. And I would not be surprised to see many thousand American troops fighting in Mexico about that time.

Couldn't Budge Catron.

When Senator Catron was elected a delegate to the national convention from New Mexico quite a number of Roosevelt Progressives gathered around him and told him that if he would support Roosevelt for president they would vote for him and help him to be re-elected United States senator. "I won't do it," replied Catron. "I won't vote for Roosevelt even if it costs me my election. Roosevelt is not a Republican. His name has no business in a Republican national convention."

Moreover, he went on to say that the way for Roosevelt to come back into the party was as a follower and not as a dictator.

Chairmanship in Sight.

The Republicans have been figuring that in the event of success next fall they will control the senate. If it so happens quite a number of new chairmen of committees of importance will be found. Among them will be Senator Page of Vermont. He will surely become the chairman of the agricultural committee, although he would have the choice of other important positions. This committee was considered so important by the late Senator Proctor of Vermont that he chose to be chairman of it rather than of military affairs. Senator Page is a hardworking member of the committee on naval affairs and Indian affairs, and it might turn out that he would have an opportunity to become chairman of one or the other.

Giving Them What They Want.

"We are giving the people what they want, what they have been asking for," remarked Senator Swanson of Virginia. "If they want anything more all they have to do is ask for it. We are the friends of the people."

"Rocking Chair Admirals."

Josephus Daniels prides himself that in administering the affairs of the navy department no favoritism is shown. Even such big fish as take his turn at what is called disagreeable service. Not long ago in rearranging the police force of Washington the captain in the precinct where Daniels lives was sent to the outskirts of the city, a most undesirable station. He spoke to Daniels about it, and the secretary called up Commissioner Brownlow and explained what a good officer this captain was, how well he performed his duty and how glad he (the secretary) would be if he could be restored to his old station.

"Mr. Secretary," replied Brownlow, "doesn't it beat all how these rocking chair admirals beat when they are ordered to sea?"

"I have nothing more to say," responded Daniels.

He had many just such experiences among officers of the navy who wanted to hold soft places.

Will Try Them Out.

Congressman Tibble of Georgia has fought pension bills as hard as he could, but he intends to try another tack. He has introduced a bill to pension every Confederate soldier and every widow of a Confederate soldier $50 per month. He bases it on a statement that $75,000,000 was collected illegally from citizens of the north as a cotton tax during the civil war.

BIRRELL SAYS IRISH HAD SHAM BATTLES

London, May 20.—Augustine Birrell, who resigned his post as chief secretary for Ireland following the Dublin rebellion, was the first witness when the royal commission resumed its investigation into the cause leading to the outbreak.

Mr. Birrell said he did not wish to modify the long statement of Under-Secretary Nathan, in which Mr. Nathan admitted the government knew in advance of the plans of the rebels, but did not disarm them, fearing bloodshed.

He did not deny Mr. Nathan's assertions that he (Birrell) was fully informed of the facts that the rebels held sham battles, at which they rehearsed the taking of Dublin castle, before the trouble broke out.

INDIAN TREATY LID APPEAL IS PLANNED

Sought to Restrain Railway from Refusing Shipments of Beer into Indian Territory

THE LOWER COURT DISMISSED

Maintained that Conditions Have Changed, Individuals Have Right to Receive Shipments

St. Paul, Minn., May 22—The Chippewa Indian treaty of Feb. 22, 1855, which ceded to the government a large portion of what is now Minnesota, is to be tested especially as to liquor traffic regulatory clauses in the United States supreme court, according to Fred W. Zollman, attorney for the Gund Brewing company, in a case in which Judge Page Morris in St. Paul Friday ruled adversely to the brewery. A direct appeal will be taken, Mr. Zollman said.

An action was brought by the Gund company in an attempt to restrain the Great Northern railroad from refusing shipments of beer into the territory in which are located Brainerd, Coleraine, Bemidji, Cass Lake, Hibbing and Chisholm. It maintained that conditions have changed and that the treaty was never intended to operate at this time, and asserted a right to consign beer to individuals for private consumption.

On motion of M. L. Countryman, appearing for the Great Northern road, dismissal of the case for want of equity was ordered by Judge Morris.

JEFFERSON HIGHWAY ROUTE

Special Meeting of the Mille Lacs-Leech Lake Jefferson Highway Association Tuesday

A special meeting of the Mille Lacs-Leech Lake Jefferson Highway Association has been called to meet at the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday afternoon, May 23d, at 2 o'clock for the purpose of taking up important business regarding the location of the proposed route and for the purpose of selecting a representative to accompany J. D. Clarkson, general manager of the Jefferson Highway association, on a tour of inspection over the route proposed by way of Elk River, Princeton, Mille Lacs lake, Brainerd, and thence north to Walker and Cass Lake.

It can readily be seen that this will probably be one of the most important meetings of the association as the success of the establishment of the route by Mille Lacs lake and thence north through Crow Wing and Cass counties will depend largely upon the impression that the gentleman makes in his inspection tour and in order that he may receive the proper information in his tour over the route it will be necessary for the local association to select the proper man to accompany Mr. Clarkson and his party, and this will be one of the important matters to be considered on Tuesday afternoon.

Every member of the association will readily see that it is absolutely necessary for them to attend this meeting.

A delegation will be present from Mille Lacs county and President Wilcox and a large delegation from Walker and Cass county will be present.

"MICHAEL'S"

KIDS IN THE ARMY

Gradle was Commandeered in the Case of Frederick William Colvin, Fought in Flanders

Frederick William Colvin, aged 17, a soldier who served in the 66th Overland Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, is in the city. Colvin measures 5 feet 3 inches high and showed his honorable discharge papers which credit him with service as a bugler in the battalion named.

He joined the army in Canada in 1914, and said he had "bummed" his way into a western town and was arrested and given the alternative of 90 days in jail or serving at the front. He took the 90 days, and the first three days were so severe that he switched to the army. He was sent to England, he says, and after training there, left for France in July, 1915. He fought in Flanders, Ypres and the Meuse and in a charge of the lancers was so badly injured that he was given a discharge. Colvin said he wasn't the only kid in the army. There were many more like him. He said they were enlisting any men who had good right arms and right eyes left, that being the principal part needed to shoot. He said part of their training consisted in long distance running to develop wind and muscle.

He said some Americans had joined the English army in England. "What are you going to do when you've got no job, are starving and the American consul won't ship you back?" he asked.

He said Americans had been asked why they didn't stay in the United States. If that country wasn't big enough for them.

The Strange Case of Mary Page

The Great McClure Mystery Story, Written by FREDERICK LEWIS, in Collaboration With JOHN T. MINTYRE, Author of the Ashton Kirk Detective Stories

Read the Story and See the Essanay Moving Pictures

Copyright, 1915, by McClure Publications

Every man and woman among the spectators was keyed to the highest tension by the swiftly moving events, and to drop from those heights to the flatness of mere waiting strained patience to the breaking point. The scrapping of chairs along the floor, the shuffling of feet, the waves of shrill whispering question and comment—all the sounds of restless humanity replaced the tense silence which had gone before—and when at last the clock had ticked out its slow half hour and the balliff brought Daniels back to the witness stand there was an audible sigh of relief from the spectators that under any other circumstances would have been a laugh from Langdon.

Now, however, he was too intent upon the possibilities that lay behind Daniels' startling statement to be even conscious of the audience that was watching with such avid curiosity the enactment of this drama. He was more than thankful to the judge whose hasty recess had momentarily stopped the protest from the prosecutor, and it was with a rush of relief that he saw the latter take his seat when court reopened and realized that, after all, Daniels' statement was to pass without a legal wrangle. It made his first question an easy one.

"Mr. Daniels, you say that you had heard Mr. Pollock threaten to kill the defendant and himself. Will you tell the court when that threat was made and to whom?"

"It was made to me, on an occasion, when I almost became an unwitting accomplice in a murder, during the rehearsals of 'The Seekers.'"

"Whose murder?"

"Mr. Langdon's."

A startled sob caught at Mary's throat at the words and, lifting her head, she looked at Langdon with such an expression in her eyes that for a moment he forgot the court, the judge and the witness on the stand, and knew only, with a blinding rush of joy, that whatever happened—she loved him. That realization was surging through Mary herself at the moment, and she felt as if she were seeing him for the first time—truly and fairly.

The protective maternal instinct that is always the real keystone of a woman's deeper love came to the fore for the first time and was followed by a swift fierce gladness that James Pollock was dead! Whatever the tragedy and the suffering that enmeshed her, at least Philip was safe, and at the thought all the fear and the horror of the law left her, and she drew a long happy breath that was almost a mute paean of gladness that it was she who could pay for his safety.

Langdon himself was equally shaken by the wonderful little interlude that had come like a streak of sunshine through the dreary gloom of the court scene, but those about him attributed the unsteadiness of his voice to excitement, and only Mary guessed the real reason and flushed rosily under her own thoughts.

"Mr. Daniels," Langdon was asking in that strange, choked voice, "will you please tell the court the circumstances of the—the attempt upon my life?"

"I didn't know it was, you know," protested Daniels. "I understood it was just to be a kidnapping—to get you—Mr. Langdon. I mean—out of the way till after the opening of 'The Seekers.'"

"You say 'just a kidnapping,' Mr. Daniels," broke in the judge harshly. "Did you not know that the law does not consider 'kidnapping' a light offense?"

"Yes, I know," Daniels' voice was husky and uncertain. "I knew, but—" all I had was invested in this new play, and if James Pollock had pulled out then, I'd have lost it all—and I've got a wife and daughter. I didn't think any harm would come to Mr. Langdon; in fact, Mr. Pollock promised he wouldn't, or I'd never have let that man Shale take the watchman's place."

"When was that?"

"During the rehearsals, as I said. Jim came to me and said that Philip Langdon was butting in too much, that he was upsetting Miss Page and making trouble for him—that is Pollock—and he wanted him out of the way. Then he said he had a plan to kidnap Langdon and take him out to the country till after the opening of the play. At first I wouldn't listen, but—finally I did. It sounded simple enough. I was to send for Langdon late that night, supposedly to ask him something about the Page contract. In the meantime we were to drug the watchman and let Shale—Pollock's jackal, they call him, you know—take his place. Then when Mr. Langdon was leaving the watchman was to nab him and carry him out to a waiting automobile and cart him off."

"Were those plans carried out?"

"No. That is, not the latter part. It was then that I found out about the attempt at murder."

"Will you tell the court in detail just what happened on that night?"

"Well, I—I sent for Mr. Langdon," said Daniels nervously, "and he came. In the meantime we had given the regular watchman knockout drops and left him in a corner of the balcony, and Shale took his place. When Mr. Langdon was leaving I called this supposed watchman and, acting on Jim's instructions, told him to show Mr. Langdon out of the stage door. But I tell you"—his voice rose suddenly to a high shrill note of hysterical emphasis—"I tell you I knew nothing of that open trap door in the stage. I thought he was going to take him right out of the theatre. And when I heard Mr. Langdon's cry—I—I was too horrified to move for a minute. Then I rushed down and turned on the stage lights."

"Will you tell us what you saw?"

"I saw Mr. Langdon hanging to the edge of an open trap that led down some thirty feet to the cement cellar below, and Shale standing to one side, with a black-jack in his hand. I thought he was going to hit Langdon, and I snatched it away from him and dragged Langdon back upon the stage. The very first words he said made me realize he didn't know the real reason of that open trap, so I hid the black-jack behind me and took Mr. Langdon to the door myself and saw him safely away."

"Did you see Mr. Pollock again that night?"

"Yes. When I got back to the stage I found him there denouncing Shale for having failed to do his part, and when I asked him if he had meant murder, he said, 'Yes! I meant to have him killed through an apparent accident. What is more, I tell you here and now, that I'll kill Mary Page and I'll kill myself, before Langdon shall win her.' That's what Jim Pollock said, and that's what I thought he had done—that night. I SWEAR I didn't go into that room! But I heard them quarrel, and I heard the scream and the shot. And I thought he'd done it—and I ran away, in sheer horror—that's all! My God! You must believe me. It's true that I quarreled with Jim Pollock, not once, but many times. It's true that he didn't play fair with me, but can't you see that I had everything to lose and nothing to gain by his death? It's meant ruin to me—and ruin to my wife and little girl."

His voice broke pitifully over the last words. Looking forward, he buried his face in his shaking hands, waiting for the next question. But it didn't come. That tragic outburst had carried conviction, not merely to Langdon but to everyone in the room, and whatever shadows of suspicion had hung over Mr. Daniels faded before the pitiful but indubitable veracity of his story. The mystery, if mystery it was, of James Pollock's death was still as impenetrable, and the cords of the law that for a time seemed to be loosening from about Mary Page, had tightened again.

But to Mary and Langdon that testimony of the manager had brought something that for the time at least seemed greater than the law—an understanding of Mary's heart, vision of what might yet be if freedom could be won for her.

It was a strange moment for a great love to find expression, and a strange story which had awakened it and, while Langdon felt deep in his heart that no words were needed after that glance of Mary's he could not forbear following her to her cell when court had adjourned. She glanced up at him with sudden shyness when he came in, and her hands went out waveringly, but whether to hold him off or to cling she could not herself have told. Langdon had no doubts, however, and caught them close in his warm grasp and drew her to him in a silence more eloquent than words. Then, stooping till his cheek lay against her hair, he whispered insistently:

"Mary, when Daniels told of James Pollock's attempt on my life, your eyes said something to me that they have never said before. Did you mean it, dear?"

"I know you did. You can never deny it now, my darling, and when all this is over, I am going to ask you a question—and—make you put into words what your eyes told me today, May I, Mary?"

For an instant she swayed against him, her head buried in his shoulder, then with a sad little sob she drew back.

"That's all such a long, long way in the future, Phil," she said wearily. "Oh, let's not even think of it. There are so many things in between."

"Dear!" he cried in sudden pity, and would have taken her in his arms again, but she shook her head and turned away, saying insistently:

"I—I think you'd better go now, please, Phil! I'm so tired."

"Of course," he answered quickly, contrition in his voice. "It was a brute to bother you now. Only, I wanted you to know, dear, that whatever happens my love is around you, and I will protect you—with my life, if need be." Catching up one of her slender little hands, he crushed it against his lips. Then he was gone.

BORDER TROOPS ARE INACTIVE

General Sibley's Force Returns From Bandit Chase.

DEVELOPMENTS ARE AWAITED

General Officers Arranging to Continue the Distribution of More Soldiers Along the Boundary—Texas Militia Will Be Sent Forward in Few Days.

San Antonio, Tex., May 22.—With the arrival on the American side of Colonel Sibley's little force which rescued Jesse Deemer and Monroe Payne and chased border raiders 145 miles into Mexico, General Funston's command of nearly 50,000 men await developments.

That portion of the army under General Pershing in Mexico has become as inactive as the remainder of the border force.

Colonel Sibley has not reported his troops on this side of the Rio Grande, but his last reported position was so far north that at General Funston's headquarters his arrival was hourly expected.

Steadily but without haste general officers have planned to continue this week the distribution of forces along the border. The Texas militia, mobilized here, will be sent forward in a few days.

The Sixth cavalry, which has been in Chihuahua under General Pershing is moving into the Big Bend district, where additional companies of the coast artillery will be placed if the war department grants General Funston's request for more.

Reports of contemplated raids at various points along the border, especially in the Brownsville district, continued to reach General Funston.

PUBLIC COOKING PROPOSED

German Towns May Take Over Feeding of the People.

Amsterdam, May 21.—German Socialist newspapers discuss the proposal for dealing with the food problems. Each community, through its chosen officials, will take over the feeding of its people, eliminating private buying and even private cooking.

Under this scheme local governments have the right to confiscate all foodstuffs at fixed prices, assemble them at public kitchens and distribute them cooked to the people.
